Amy Sahm, Senior Vice President and Manager

International Group

Fulton Bank, Lancaster, PA

Amy joined Fulton Bank's International Group in 2002 following a long-term career in the Japanese banking and trade industry. As department manager, she oversees product development, operations, FX trading, correspondent banking, sales and risk management. The International Group at Fulton is responsible for foreign exchange services, international payments, and Trade services for Fulton's customer base. The International Group primarily serves import / export SME clients within Fulton's five state footprint in the mid-Atlantic.

Amy graduated from the University of Pittsburgh with a degree in Japanese Studies. She acts as board member and Treasurer of the World Trade Center of Central PA, Chair of the Mid-Atlantic District Export Council, executive board member of the PA Global Business Advisors and a board member for the global banking association, BAFT (Bankers Association for Finance and Trade). She also participates in the International Business Advisory Board of Elizabethtown College. In addition to BAFT, Amy is active throughout the North American regional bank network in several industry groups.

Amy has presented seminars on foreign exchange and trade finance throughout various trade organizations and local colleges in the mid-Atlantic region.
