Kyle H. David
KDG

Kyle H. David is a technology entrepreneur, AI strategist, and CEO of KDG, a nationally recognized professional services firm specializing in accounting, technology, and strategy. With nearly three decades of experience, Kyle has been at the forefront of digital transformation, helping organizations leverage technology to drive operational excellence and cultural change.

Starting in his early career as a consultant, Kyle quickly rose to lead multi-million-dollar IT projects for Fortune 50 companies, large university hospitals, and global nonprofits. He pioneered "price scraping" in e-commerce, founded and scaled multiple internet ventures, and built KDG into a powerhouse serving businesses, nonprofits, and government entities—including the U.S. Senate and major financial institutions.

Kyle's work and research in artificial intelligence focus on making AI accessible and actionable for modern organizations. His expertise has helped businesses transition from low-tech operations to high-performance, data-driven enterprises.

He holds a B.A. from Muhlenberg College, earning his degree in three years, and has completed executive education programs in Strategic Management at Cornell University and Disruptive Innovation at Harvard Business School. He is also a former law student and a Part-Time Lecturer at Muhlenberg College, where he teaches "Disruptive Businesses and Marketing Strategies." Additionally, he has trained with the Ritz-Carlton Leadership Institute and the Disney Management Institute, applying their world-class service principles to AI-driven business strategy.

An internationally sought-after advisor and speaker on Artificial Intelligence, Business Strategy, and Technology Ethics, Kyle delivers engaging, practical insights on how AI is shaping the future of work, empowering businesses to build more strategic, adaptive, and ethical cultures.
